Madhuban Publications, a well-known establishment in bringing out standard textbooks for Hindi language has always intended on motivating children and teachers for their involvement and contribution in the field of Hindi Literature. We take pride in announcing that our student M P Harshitha has been awarded by them with a medal and certificate for scoring the highest marks in her class X CBSE board exam among BVM group of schools. An award ceremony was also organised by them in New Delhi where teachers from across the country were awarded for their efforts and contributions in Hindi literature. We are proud to share that Ms. Ruchi Thukral, our Vice Principal was felicitated in the prestigious event. The event was held in the presence of renowned Hindi poets and writers. A special assembly was held at the school campus where our beloved Principal felicitated the awardees amidst a cheering crowd. These accolades boost up the spirits of the children and teachers in putting their whole-hearted effort into learning and gaining knowledge.

Polycystic Ovary Syndrome (PCOS)

PCOS is one of the common gynaecological problems among the adolescent age group and childbearing age group in which a hormone imbalance causes irregular periods or no periods at all, increased facial or body hair, acne, overweight or rapid increase in weight or difficulty in losing weight and may affect fertility. PCOS is associated with obesity and increased insulin resistance and therefore increases the risk of developing diabetes, blood pressure, heart disease and other conditions later in life.

Women with PCOS can reduce the risk of long-term health problems by having a healthy lifestyle and maintaining normal body weight.

SOME OF FAQs..

IS PCOS(polycystic ovary syndrome ) AND PCO (polycystic ovary) IS SAME? Having a polycystic ovary in ultrasound( slightly bigger ovary and twice the number of follicles) does not necessarily mean that you have PCOS. Women with PCOS will have the symptoms as well as Polycystic ovaries.

WHAT COULD PCOS MEAN FOR MY LONG-TERM HEALTH?

Insulin resistance and diabetes - 1 to 2 in every 10 PCOS Women go to diabetes at some point. The risk is increased if you are more than 40, family history of diabetes, developed diabetes during pregnancy and are obese(BMI more than 30)

High blood pressure and heart disease - likely related to insulin resistance and obese rather than PCOS itself.

CANCER- If you have fewer than three periods in a year, the lining of the uterus can thicken and can lead to endometrial cancer in a small number of women. IT does not increase the chance of breast or ovarian cancer.

DEPRESSION AND MOOD SWINGS.

WHAT CAN I DO TO REDUCE LONG TERM HEALTH RISK?

There are many ways to reduce the overall risk of long-term health risk.

Having a healthy lifestyle - means eating a healthy balanced diet that includes fruits and vegetables and cutting down on sugar, salt and caffeine. Eat meals regularly, especially breakfast. Take exercise regularly (30 minutes at least 3 times a week). All to maintain ideal body weight.

Have regular health checkups- to monitor diabetes, cancer of the endometrium, high blood pressure and depression and psychological problems.

Is that a cure for PCOS?

There is no cure for PCOS. Medical treatments aim to manage and reduce the symptoms or consequences of having PCOS. Medications alone have not been shown to be any better than healthy lifestyle changes.

Bingipura Lake Overview

The lake is located in Bettadasanapura, S Bingipura and was last year restored ecologically by Allergan and Green Yatra Trust ( initiative from Anand Mallikawad ).The lake can hold 4.5 to 4.75 lakh cubic metres of water. After its rejuvenation, it has recharged about 200 to 300 bore wells within a radius of 4 to 5 km around the lake. Continuous improvements on pathway improvements( concrete pathways) , fencing, inlet, development works, strengthening of wetland, trash barriers, main bund seepage rectification, upkeep and monitor diversion drain by the government would be needed.

CSR Activity

Electronic city times team has kick-started its small steps to contribute to the community. The first Corporate Social Responsibility activity was identified as the Government lower primary school, Basapura, which has around 60 kids including classes 1-5. Based on the need identified, the students were given steel water bottles to ensure the kids would bring hygienic water daily and speeches by the corporate team to motivate the kids to concentrate on their studies. The team will continue to make an impact in the community, by active participation in the public life of a community in an informed, committed, and constructive manner, with a focus on the common good welfare in the local community.
